Introduction

This guide contains important information about the services we offer, how we and our associates are paid, any potential conflict of interest we may have and our internal and external dispute resolution procedure and how you can access it.

Best Interest Advice Pty Ltd has held an Australian Financial Services Licence Number 292925 since 2006. Its services are varied and it authorises individuals and corporates to provide fee-based advice to Australian individuals and small and medium size companies.

Our AFS Licence permits us to advise on, and deal in, the following classes of financial products:

- deposit and payment products
- government debentures, stocks or bonds
- general insurance products
- investment life insurance products
- interest in managed investment schemes
- investor directed portfolio services
- RSA products
- life risk
- insurance products
- managed investments
- retirement income streams
- securities
- standard margin lending facilities
- superannuation
- self-managed superannuation funds
- Applying for, acquiring, varying or disposing of a financial product on behalf of another person in respect of deposit products, general insurance government bonds, life products and investor directed portfolios, RSA's and securities standard margin lending facility and superannuation to retail and wholesale clients.

- Notice of independence as required under the Corporations Act 2021.
- Best Interest Advice AFSL 292925 and its various divisions are required to insert the following into our financial services guide declaring that we are not independent, impartial, or unbiased within the meaning of the corporations' act and here is why.
- The law makes it exceedingly difficult for most advisers in today's marketplace to say they are independent, unbiased, or impartial, even if they are not linked in any way to a financial product provider like a bank or insurance company like we are. We have been determined for a long time to offer advice to our clients that is in their best interest and in some cases, it will involve servicing their insurance or bank products where a commission has been built into the product. The receipt of this commission means that we cannot call ourselves independent or unbiased.
- It does not, in any way, mean that the advice is any less appropriate. We always provide advice that is in the clients' best interest and meets their goals and objectives and is fee based so this takes out of play any conflict of interest.

We may give you other documents when providing our services. These may include:

- Statements of Advice - If we provide you with advice about your personal circumstances, we will set out our advice in a Statement of Advice (or in some cases, a shorter document called a Record of Advice). This will also tell you how we will be remunerated for the advice we give you. When we provide further advice to you, we may not give you a Statement of Advice, however we will record the advice and you can ask us for a copy of the advice by calling us.
- Product Disclosure Statements - If we recommend that you acquire a financial product, we will also provide you with a Product Disclosure Statement containing information about the products features and risks.

What information should I provide to receive personal advice?

Our advisers will only provide advice after you agree to the terms of our Financial Services Guide. You will then be required to complete an online or phone based personal fact find which will collect your personal information, goals and objectives, financial situation and needs. If you do not provide accurate information about your situation, the advice you receive may not be appropriate to your needs. We will also collect information from other means like the tax agent portal and other data sources only with your prior approval. This will assist us in getting an accurate and full picture of your financial position from which to provide a recommendation. We cannot provide appropriate advice unless we receive accurate information.

What is the difference between getting general advice and personal advice?

General advice is given only if your adviser clarifies with you (the client), when they give the advice, that they are not giving personal advice, because they do not consider the relevant circumstances (i.e., your objectives, financial situation or needs). We will also issue a warning that it is general advice. If you choose to receive general advice, then it will be without considering your objectives, financial situation or needs (s949A (2) (a) of the Corporations Act). You should then consider whether this advice is appropriate to your needs before you enlist us to provide personal advice.

What do we charge for the advice and services we provide?

Before you engage us to provide personal advice, we will outline in our engagement letter to you an estimate of the fees that will be charged based on the scope of the advice. Our fees are reasonable and based on putting you in a better financial position. Our minimum fee is $2,000 for the preparation of a comprehensive plan that will address the following:
